Binoculars of faith

The idea behind his artwork was that a person was questioning the location of God, therefore looked through 'binoculars' to reveal the answer to all of their doubts. Through the binocular, you can see a pair of hands holding the Earth.

I have chosen to keep the frame of the binoculars monochromatic because it contrasts against the main theme of the work (the hands holding the Earth), thus making it stand out. In addition to this, I have only decided to shade Gods hand and not add colour as I believe it does not matter what Gods skin tone is or what God looks like. This is also because God could look like anything and it wouldn't matter.

The 'binocular of faith' have been drawn in a metaphorical sense as they represent, they eye of the faithful. They are drawn to show a theists response to 'Where is God?'. The hands show how God is holding the world together and how he cares for everyone on Earth, not just a portion of it!

The message of my artwork is that you don't always have to see something physically for it to seem real to you – all you need is faith!

Who made the world?

I chose this question because there is no answer, because people will always have a strong connection with their God and how they think the world came to be. Although not everyone has the same religion, I still think everyone is entitled to an opinion and belief, but this can make it confusing when trying to find answers. People have always tried to create ways to prove how the world was created but no one is able to prove this as they weren't there. My image is space with a question mark over it, to represent the question - who made the world? Instead of the sky being black, I made my sky various colours to make it beautiful because sometimes people don't appreciate how beautiful the world is, and how amazing their God is that created it, or how amazing the Big Bang is! Also people don't appreciate all the little things like how amazing space is! I also wonder why we can see the moon, yet not other planets although when you are near them they are so bright and amazing! The question mark is bigger than the world to show how many questions people have on a daily basis, yet there is so many of them unanswered!

Image of God

As a Christian I believe that God cannot be drawn that well and we will have to wait until we go to Heaven. The Bible clearly tells us we won't be able to see his face, Exodus 33:20 'But he added "You cannot see my face for no one can see me and live."

Some Christians have pictures of how God looks like to them as it makes it more personal.

I decided to make an art work using verses from the Bible as I believe they describe God Best.
